Judge Mann Succumbs to Illness

Judge Russell Mann, ex-County Judge of Bourbon, Confederate soldier and prominent lawyer, died at his home on Pleasant street in this city yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock after an illness of several weeks of general debility.

About five weeks ago Judge Mann suffered an attack and has since been confined to his bed, although previous to that time he had a slight illness which confined him to his room for about a week, the direct cause being rheumatism from which he had been a constant sufferer for a number of years.

At the opening of the Civil War Judge Mann entered the service of the Confederate army enlisting in Company C, Ninth Kentucky, in the company of Capt. Ed Taylor, and served in the command of General John H. Morgan. In this company he participated in all the principal events and campaigns of General Morgan, up to the time the intrepid cavalry leader started with his command on the Ohio raid, when the company under Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge was transferred to the command of General Wheeler.

Judge Mann was a native of Nicholas county, but early in life moved with his parents to Millersburg, where they resided for a number of years. Prior to his removal to Paris he resided on a farm and engaged in the pursuit of agriculture. He began the practice of law and first served this county in the capacity of County Attorney.

On September 26, 1888, the Bourbon Fiscal Court by a unanimous vote elected him to the office of County Judge to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge Matt Turney, and served until August 1889 when he was nominated by the Democratic party and elected for a term of four years. In 1894 he was a candidate for re-election but was defeated in the regular election by Judge H. C. Howard, who succeeded him in January 1895.

Under the appointment of Governor J. C. W. Beckham Judge Mann was made Master Commissioner of the Bourbon Circuit Court on June 28, 1905, which office he held until the time of his death. He was a prominent member of the Bourbon bar and one of the best known attorneys of Central Kentucky.

Until his late illness he has always taken an active part in the affairs of the Confederate Veterans Association, of which he was a member. He is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Miss Kate Hutchcraft, two sons, Mr. Whittington Mann, of Paris, and Attorney Ray Mann, of Louisville, three daughters, Mrs. Walter Kenney, Mrs. R. S. Swango and Mrs. W. K. Dudley, of Paris.

Up to a late hour last night the funeral arrangements had not been completed.

May Be Wanted In Atlanta For Murder.

Thomas Woods, colored, alias Harry Matthews, alias Harry Stewart, was arrested and landed in jail Monday night by Patrolman Fred Link, on a charge of robbery, and according to information may be a fugitive from Atlanta, Ga., wanted in that city for murder.

The arrest of Woods came about after a week of clever work on the part of Patrolman Link, who has been on the close lookout for a number of thieves that have been operating in this city. Woods, it is believed, is at the head of an organized band that have centered their operations on the groceries and other stores in Paris, and have succeeded in making away with a large amount of goods.

A few weeks ago the News published an account of a very bold and successful scheme on the part of the negroes in the theft of goods from various grocery stores and when the matter was reported to the police Patrolman Link went to work on the case. Sunday night he met Woods on the street and on being unable to give a satisfactory account of where he had been during the night was told by the officer to go to his home. This move of the officer was for the purpose of getting an idea of where the negro was staying.

Woods succeeded in getting away but on Monday night Patrolman Link came across him again, and on this occasion he was carrying a bundle. Link followed him to the restaurant of Rachel Jefferson on Eighth street, where he arrested the negro who was making an effort to dispose of the package, which contained a side of bacon, to the negroes.

Woods was employed with a construction company here and a companion has given the information to the officers that the negro is wanted in Atlanta, Ga., for murder. Woods admitted to the officers that he came here from Atlanta. The local department communicated with the police department of that city, and a reply is expected at any time. It is said a big reward is offered for the capture of the Atlanta murderer, and in case Woods should be the man wanted by the Atlanta police, this reward will go to Patrolman Link.

Will Smith, a negro, who it is said has been associated with Woods and others in their operations in Paris was arrested Wednesday night by Patrolmen Link and McKenney and locked up. It is expected the remainder of the organized band will be run in within the next few days. Their arrest will have the effect of breaking up the boldest band of thieves that ever struck Paris.

Getting First Hand Facts.

Sixty of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives are utilizing the holiday recess to make a first hand study of conditions in the Panama canal zone. Inasmuch as the canal is eating up government money
at the rate of several thousands of dollars a day the Democrats hold that it is their duty to see, personally, that this money is being wisely and properly spent. The question of fortifying the canal will come up soon, and as this will mean a large additional expenditure, The Democrats propose to know just why and where this money is to be expended. Hence they are taking advantage of the temporary letup in affairs at Washington to investigate.

Speaker Clark has urged all the Democrats to visit the canal zone at some time, and practically all of them propose to follow his advice. This is in line with the announced Democratic program to get to the bottom of every proposition which calls for an expenditure of government money.

Seeking a Way Out.

That the men who control the big industrial corporations of the country are convinced that the people are determined to break up these monopolies, and that they are seeking a way
to escape this mandate of the people,
are among the most important facts brought out by the Senate trust investigating committee.

Louis D. Brandeis, the noted Boston lawyer, told the committee that the statements of Mr. Gary and Mr. Perkins, that the trusts were willing to accept a price fixing law, were only apparent concessions. What the magnates want, Mr. Brandeis said, is the passage of the Aldrich monetary scheme, which will insure the continuance of a centralized control of money and credit, on which all business depends. These magnates, the lawyer testified, are bending every effort to gain the enactment of the Aldrich plan into law, and one of their methods, he said, was to blind the people to their real purpose by making them believe the trusts are willing to surrender.

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association, think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worth-lessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos.
Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes:
"I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and its the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy, or sore lungs. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer.

At the Lexington Opera House.

WILLIAM HODGE IN "THE MAN
FROM HOME."

One of the most attractive features about the play "The Man From Home"
written by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson which will be seen at the Lexington Opera House Monday January 15, with William Hodge and the original company, is the humorous blow it strikes at the folly of international marriages, a theme that is handled without gloves from the rise of the curtain until its fall. The authors have deliberately set forth, it is understood, with the idea of heaping ridicule
upon this form of Republican insanity,
and according to the success of the play in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Boston, where it broke all records, have more than made good their object. The consensus of opinion in those cities is that no more delightful entertaining play has been seen in recent years, and that its success is due as much to the homely spirit of truth as to its clean wholesome nature.

The four acts are laid at the Hotel
Regina Margherita at Sorrento, Italy,
and the chief figure, that of a lawyer
from Kokomo, Indiana, stands forth with unusual brilliancy by the very reason of his foreign setting. Messrs.
Liebkr & Company are responsible for the production in its every particular,
and this is a guaranty of no small nature, as those who have witnessed such plays as "The Squaw Man," "Salome Jane," "The Dawn of Tomorrow,"
"Alias Jimmy Valentine," "The Fourth Estate," "The Deep Purple," "Pom-ander Walk," "Disraeli," etc., are aware. The cast supporting Mr. Hodge is one that has presented the play in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston with such minor changes only as four seasons make inevitable. The underlying spirit of the piece is a true republicanism that should come as a distinctly refreshing note amid the plays of the present day, and the high position of the authors in the world of literature would indicate that must possess unusual merit, besides.

FRANCIS WILSON.

Any one who can make us laugh
these days is always welcome in our midst, therefore, the announcement that the popular comedian, Francis Wilson, is to be seen locally in his own comedy fare, "The Bachelor's Baby," is one that will please all classes of playgoers, for the play has the qualities to amuse the old and young alike.
There is laughter in "The Bachelor's Baby," some tears, bright dialogues,
very amusing scenes and there is a well told straightforward story. "The Bachelor's Baby" tells a story of a bachelor who hates children. His brother and the latter's wife are lost at sea and the bachelor falls heir to their little daughter, whose heart she wins long before he is himself aware of it. Incidentally there is a love story woven into the comedy which has become very entangled on account of the hero's pronounced ideas in regard to children. This, too, is straightened out by the little girl and so the comedy ends to the satisfaction of every one. Charles Forthman presents Francis Wilson in "The Bachelor's Baby" at the Lexington Opera House
January 17.

"MOTHER."

"Mother," the play that received from one of the most conservative dramatic critics of today the appellation of "The Play of the Century," will be the attraction at the Lexington Opera House Saturday,
matinee and night.

Jules Eckert Goodman, who wrote
"The Test," "The Man Who Stood Still," and several other recent successes, is the author of this latest of uplift dramas, and from all indications it would appear that his "Mother" will live to see another such career as
"Way Down East" and "The Old Homestead." One able dramatic writer once said that the play most likely destined to long life is the one that can make an audience cry at one moment and force away the tears by heartily laughter. If this be a good criterion, "Mother" will still be entertaining playgoers when the present generation is no more, for it is indeed
a difficult task to tell when the audiences who see this piece are laughing or crying. Some theatre goers like only the sentimental plays, while others will not go to see anything that fails to create merriment. It is altogether plausible then to believe that "Mother" will meet the exactions of every man, woman and child who frequents a playhouse. It is just one of those simple plays which enjoy success by reason of this same simplicity and homely environment.

Mr. Wm. A. Brady, the producer, who also controls the destinies of
"Baby Mine," "Over Night," "The Boss," and other pronounced successes of the present season, will send the original New York cast and production
for the engagement there.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood.
Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.
Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

PUBLIC SALE OF A Splendid Bourbon County Farm

Having decided to quit farming, I will sell at public outcry on TUESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1912, AT 2 O'CLOCK, P. M.
ON THE PREMISES

my farm of 362 acres, situated six miles west of Paris, Ky., on the Georgetown pike. The farm will be offered in five tracts, as follows:

Joe Lewis to Manage Paris Team.

Joe Lewis, for three years manager of the Marion club, of the Ohio State League, will in all probability manage the Paris Club the coming season. This information comes from Marion where Lewis has been on a visit for several days before going to his home in Marietta, Pa.

President Bacon, of the Paris club has been in communication with Lewis and a contract has been forwarded him, and while nothing official has been reported to the head of the local club the information comes from a reliable source, and it is regarded positively that he has accepted the terms advanced to him by the Paris management and his contract is expected within the next few days.

Lewis, it is said, expects to bring a number of the former members of the Marion club to Paris with him next spring, and with this object in view has asked for a number of blank contracts of the local club. He is regarded as a high class manager and during the three years he served at the head of the Marion club never finished lower than the third position.

President Bacon has forwarded contracts to the men held on the reserve list by the Paris club as follows: Danny Harrell, Pittsburg, Pa.; Wm. Kuhlman, Cincinnati, O.; B. F. Goodman, Paintsville, Ky.; Ollie Chapman, Cincinnati; Claude Maxwell, Indianapolis, Ind.; James Hauser, Lyons, Ind., and George Schrauder, Cincinnati.

Steam Shovel Unearths Skeleton.

A steam shovel employed in excavating for the double track of the Louisville and Nashville railroad near Riverport unearthed the skeleton of a human being that had evidently been buried a number of years. The bones are in a fair state of preservation, and give evidence of being a man of immense stature. In the vicinity of the place where the skeleton was found it is said there was an Indian burying ground, where the remains of Swanee Indians killed in an attack on a settler's cabin, at the mouth of Cooper's Run, when Kentucky was a wilderness, were buried by the backwoodsmen.

MATRIMONIAL.

—The Purcell, Okla., Register gives the following account of the marriage of Miss Rosa Margolen, formerly of this city, to Mr. Jos. H. Baum, of Chickasha, Okla.:

"The wedding of Mr. Joseph H. Baum, of Chickasha, and Miss Rosa Margolen, formerly of Paris, Kentucky, but for some time past making her home with her sister, Mrs. George Schwartz, of this city, on Monday afternoon, January 1, 1912, at 3:30 o'clock, was pronounced by all of the large number of friends who witnessed it one of the most beautiful ceremonies ever held in the town. It had been the intention to hold the wedding at the home of Mr. Schwartz but so many friends of the young lady wished to attend that the house would not accommodate them and the Baptist church was kindly loaned for the happy occasion.

"The reformed Hebrew ceremony, in use from time immemorial, was used by Dr. Blatt, of Oklahoma City, the officiating Rabbi, who delivered the beautiful charges with which the ceremony is replete, in a solemnly impressive manner, giving an added beauty to the richly poetic lines by his masterly delivery. The bride, beautifully attired in white tulle, over a duchesse satin, carrying a bouquet of bride's roses, entered on the arm of her father, Mr. Herman Margolen, of Paris, Ky., the groom, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Theresa Baum, of Chickasha, Okla. During the ceremony Miss Wollstein, of Paris, Ky., a vocalist of rare attainments, possessing a voice of wonderful sweetness, most beautifully sang two songs, "Because," and "I Love You Truly." The wedding march from "Lohengrin," was most tastefully rendered by Mrs. J. F. Sharp, of Oklahoma City, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Schwartz on the violin.

"Prior to the wedding a delightful five course dinner was served to the immediate families of the bride and groom at the pretty home of Mrs. Schwartz; upon its conclusion a reception was held at the same place, delicious refreshments, consisting of ices and cakes, fashioned in heart designs being served. Later some excellent music was given by the University Orchestra of Norman.

"The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and expensive gifts from their many friends and relatives, together with the most hearty good wishes of all who know them.

"The bride and groom left on the Santa Fe north at 6 o'clock. The bride's traveling dress was a handsome blue suit, with hat, gloves and shoes to match. After spending a few weeks visiting relatives of both parties in Illinois and Kentucky, they will return to Chickasha, where the groom has elegantly furnished apartments ready to receive the lovely girl he has won." Mr. Louis Saloshin, of this city, an uncle of the bride, attended the wedding.

—Mr. George Crouch, of Bourbon, and Miss Ida Clintebear, of Nicholas county, were married at Carlisle Monday.

—Miss Ruby Squires and Mr. Claude Rathiff, both of Carlisle, were united in marriage in that city Monday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Turley Squires, Elder E. R. Templeman officiating. Mr. Rathiff was formerly engaged in the livery business in Carlisle and for some time has conducted a restaurant at the L. & N. depot in this city. He is at present associated with Mr. Guy Overby, of Paris, in the management of the Kimbrough House in Carlisle.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Behrman, of Newport, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Josephine, to Mr. J. W. Bacon, of this city. The wedding will be a social event in February at the home of the bride-elect's parents.

The announcement is received with a great deal of interest here, where the to-be-bridegroom has many friends in both social and business circles. He is the popular president of the Paris Base Ball Club, and is very prominent in business circles.

Miss Behrman is a very attractive young woman, a social favorite, and has been a frequent visitor to this city, being the guest of Miss Corinne Collins on numerous occasions, and made many friends while here.

"It is true, then? . . . I fancied so; I knew that some day you would come to claim it. . . . Bend nearer to me. . . . The Pool of Flame is in the keeping of my good friend, the Governor-General of Algeria. It is all arranged. When I am gone, take my signet ring, tell him your name, and demand the package—a small morocco-leather box, wrapped in plain brown paper and superscribed with my name and yours. He knows nothing of its value, save that it is great, and will deliver it to you and only you without question. . . . That is all."

The hand that clasped O'Rourke's was like ice.

"Chambret!"

"Beatrix. . . ."

The cold fingers relaxed. Gently O'Rourke disengaged his hand and put it to the pitiful, torn bosom of the man who had died with his wife's name upon his lips.

CHAPTER IX.

Shortly before midnight the tri-weekly train from Constantine to Algiers pulled up over an hour late at the town of El-Guerah. It took up a single passenger, discharged none, and presently thundered on westwards, rocking and jarring over a road-bed certainly no better than it should have been. Such, at least, was the passenger's criticism, as, groaning in anticipation of the long night of discomfort ahead of him, he disposed himself and his belongings about the cushions of the first-class compartment which he occupied in solitary grandeur.

They Had Literally Caught Him Napping.

O'Rourke had no intention of leaving anything undone that might tend to mitigate the terrors of the journey.

Five days had elapsed since that morning in the oasis. In the interval he had again dared the danger of the desert, returning to Biskra alone by a route more direct than that which had brought him up with the flying column.

Discharging the guide with a gratuity larger than his ebbing means warranted, he had proceeded to El-Guerah by the first daily train, and so now found himself on the direct line of communication with Algiers and the Governor-General.

His chiefest concern now lay with the future and the Pool of Flame; both bulked large upon the horizon and were at once the architects and the nuclei of a thousand different plans of action.

So far, the affair had worked smoothly; he anticipated little trouble.

So thinking he dozed, and in the course of time lulled by the hammering of a flat-wheel at the forward end of the coach, fell asleep. He awakened suddenly after a nap of some two hours or so, to a confusion of impressions: that the train had stopped; that some one had invaded his compartment; that a cold blast was blowing across his wrists. Bewildered and not half master of his senses, he started up and fell back with a thud, assisted to resume a recumbent position by a heavy blow upon his chest, delivered by some person for the moment unknown. Simultaneously he was aware of a clicking sound, followed by the sensation of being unable to move his feet; and then, the clouds clearing from his understanding, he realized that the cold upon his wrists was that of steel. With handcuffs also on his ankles, he lay helpless, unable even to protest because of a cloth wadded tightly into his mouth and a firm hand that prevented ejection.

Other hands were rifling his pockets, swiftly but after a bungling fashion. The train, having paused briefly at Setif (he afterwards located the station by conjecture), began to move again, was presently in full thundering flight. Abruptly the examination of his person—which was so thorough that it included the opening of his shirt to assure the thieves that he carried nothing in the shape of a money-belt—was concluded and the adventurer was roughly jerked into a sitting position. At the same time his gag was removed.

He gasped, blinked, coughed, and rolled a resentful eye around the compartment. "Be the powers!" he said huskily; and no more. At first glance it became apparent that he had miscalculated the audacity and resource of the vicomte and Mr. Glynn. They had literally caught him napping.

FREE FOR STOMACH AND BOWELS

We are in receipt of letters from Mrs. Eva Gaskins, 304 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., and Mr. P. H. Gavelas, Wagoner, Okla., as well as many others, telling about the wonderful results they have secured in the cure of their stomach and liver troubles by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

This remedy, as all readers doubtless know, has been before the public for a generation and is now being more extensively used than any other remedy for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. According to reliable testimony, it seems to be a very quick and lasting cure for constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, liver trouble, biliousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar disorders. It is a liquid with tonic effect, and so moderate and gentle in action that a child as well as a grown person can take it, in fact, it has no equal for children, women and old people.

It arouses the flow of gastric juice, and by a peculiar action trains the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with. A free sample bottle can be had for trial by sending your address to the doctor, for in this way Mrs. Gaskins, Mr. Gavelas and many others first learned of the cure. Later, when satisfied it is the remedy you need, do as others are doing and buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

HONOR ROLL

Of Paris Public School For Month of December—Enrollment, White, 714—Average Attendance 596—List of Honor Students.

Everything was in excellent condition during December. The attendance in the white school was 596, while it was only 474 for the month of December last year.

Mrs. Clark Clark, the efficient Truant officer, is doing excellent work, and this month we are having an average attendance of nearly 600.

The colored school is in the best condition that we have ever known it. The enrollment is 346 and the attendance 286. This is an average daily attendance in both schools of '82 and an enrollment of 1,060.

Splendid interest is manifest everywhere, yet, a few pupils—as is always the case—are not willing to work, or they are incapable to do the work. All except a very few are doing most excellent work. Our schools do not "furnish capacity" nor give undeserved grades.

The Pool of Flame

Copyright 1909, by Louis Joseph Vance

CHAPTER III.—At his room O'Rourke, who had agreed to undertake the mission, awaits the viscount. O'Rourke finds a mysterious letter in his apartment. The viscount arrives, hands a sealed package to O'Rourke, who is not to open it until on the ocean. He says the French government will pay O'Rourke 25,000 francs for his services. A pair of dainty slippers are seen protruding from under a doorway curtain and the viscount charges O'Rourke with having a spy secreted there.

CHAPTER IV.—When the Irishman goes to his room he finds there the owner of the mysterious foot. It is his wife, Beatrice, from whom he had run away a year previous. They are reconciled, and opening the letter he had received, he finds that a law firm in Bangalore, India, offers him 100,000 pounds for an Indian jewel known as the Pool of Flame and left to him by a dying friend. O'Rourke tells his wife that it is in the keeping of a friend named Chambret in Algeria.

CHAPTER V.—O'Rourke is forced to fight a duel with the viscount. The braggart nobleman is worsted in the combat and acts the poltroon.

CHAPTER VI.—The loyal wife bids O'Rourke farewell and he promises to soon return with the reward offered for the Pool of Flame. He discovers both Glynn and the viscount on board the ship which takes him to Algeria.

CHAPTER VII.—Chambret has left Algeria and O'Rourke has to gain a military detachment going across the desert to reach his friend. As he finds this there is an attack by bandits and Chambret is shot.

"Hush, Sidi!" Something in the guide's tone stilled his wrath. "The Touaregs are all about us. They have been passing us throughout the night."

"Ye knew this and did not wake me?"

"There was no need; we could not have moved ere this without detection. Now, they are all a-stir, and we in the night, may pass for them—until moon-up."

The guide turned away to rouse the meharas, prodding them up, mutinous, snarling and ugly. In another five minutes they were again moving forward. By the time the silver rim of the moon peered over the edge of the east they were pelting on at full speed, as yet, apparently, undetected by the Touaregs.

An hour passed, and the chill in the air became more intense; dawn was at hand. A sense of security, of dangers left behind, came to the Irishman; he began to breathe more freely, though still the polished butt of a repeating rifle swinging from the saddle remained a comfort to his palm. He grew more confident, mentally at ease, seeing the desert take shape in the moonlight and show itself desolate on every hand.

He Had Found Chambret.

Even as he gained assurance from this thought, the guide turned in his saddle and cried a warning: "The Touaregs!" From that moment on both wielded merciless whips. For out of the moonlit wastes behind them had shrilled a voice, a cruel and wild, announcing discovery and the inception of the chase. The fugitives had need of no sharper spur.

A rifle shot rang sharp on the echoes of that cry, but the bullet must have fallen far short. A moment later, indeed, they opened a brisk, scattering fire—naturally ineffectual, though the bullets dropping right and left in the sand proved that the chase had got within range.

Even with that warning, the end was nearer than he had dreamed or hoped. It came in a twinkling and as unexpected as a bolt out of a clear sky: a flash of fire ahead, a spiffing snap and—pfft!—the song of a bullet speeding past his head.

The guide pulled up with a jerk. O'Rourke, reining in desperately, swung his camel wide to avert the threatened collision. Simultaneously the sharp "Qui vive!" of a French sentry rang out, loud and sweet to hear.

"Thank God!" said the adventurer in his heart. And aloud, "Friends!" he cried, driving past the sentry in a cloud of dust.

By a blessed miracle the man was quick of wit, and swift to grasp the situation—of which, however, he must have had some warning from the rattle of firing. He screamed something in O'Rourke's ear as the latter passed, and turning threw himself flat and began to pump the trigger of his carbine, emptying the magazine at the on-sweeping line of Touaregs.

The alarm was hardly needed; O'Rourke and the guide swept on over the slip of a depression in the desert and halted in the midst of a camp already quickened and alive with shadowy figures running methodically to their posts, carbine and accoutrement gleaming in the moonlight: men of the camel crops, hardened to and familiar with their work. They buckled down to it in a business-like way that thrilled the heart of O'Rourke. In a trice they were doubling out past lines of tethered meharas, past the white hillocks of the officers' shelter-tents and, like the sentry, throwing themselves down upon the ground to take shelter of whatever inequalities the face of the desert offered; and their firing ringed the bivouac with a fringe of flame.

O'Rourke slipped from his camel and turned to watch the skirmish. Massed, the Touaregs, in strength greater than the adventurer had believed—something like two hundred mounted men, in all—charged down upon the camp as if to over-run and stampede it.

Yet at the critical moment, when it seemed that of a surety there was no stopping them, they divided and swung round the camp in two wide circles, scattering into open order and firing as they scattered. Here and there a horse fell, a rider threw out his hands and toppled from his saddle, a camel seemed to buckle at full tilt like a faulty piece of machinery; and so gaps appeared in the flying wings.

For the men of the flying column were picked shots. They had need to be, who had such tasks as this to cope with.

Nor—for that matter—were the Touaregs the only sufferers. Here and there in the camp a man plunged forward in mid-stride, and on the firing line beyond the tents now and again a sharpshooter shuddered and lay still upon his arms. Even at O'Rourke's side an officer was shot as he ran to the front, and would have fallen had not the Irishman caught him with ready arms and let him easily to the earth. As he did so the stricken man rolled an agonized eye upward.

"O'Rourke!" he said between a groan and a sigh.

And O'Rourke, kneeling at his side and peering into his face, gave a bitter cry. For he had found Chambret.

CHAPTER VIII.

Preparations for breakfast were toward; an aroma of coffee and bacon hung in the still, crisp air. The troopers were bustling about as if nothing had happened, laughing and joking, cleaning rifles, feeding the meharas, striking tents, drawing water from the palm-ringed well round which the camp had been made.

Out of sight beyond the edge of the sunken oases a detachment was digging shallow trenches for the dead.

In the open Chambret lay dying, a stark grim figure in the growing light. O'Rourke sat by his side, near the head of the improvised litter, elbow in knee, chin in hand, eyes fixed on the face of his friend.

Just before sunrise the man on the litter stirred, moaned, opened his eyes and turned his head to see O'Rourke. He smiled wanly. "Mon ami," he said in tones faint yet thick.

The Irishman rose. "Don't talk," said he. "I'll be calling the surgeon."

But Chambret stayed him with a gesture. "Has he not told you, dear friend?" he asked.

O'Rourke hesitated. "Told me what?"

"That my wound was fatal—mortal?"

"Surely he must have told you. It is so. Presently I die."

"Let him be—this surgeon: I am beyond his aid. Attend to me, in my last moments, O'Rourke, my friend."

The adventurer vacillated, torn by an agony of compassion. "I must do something for ye," he said miserably. "I must do something."

"What can I do?"

"Comfort me." The dying man closed his eyes and lay still for a little. "You are not gone, O'Rourke?" he asked presently.

"I'm here, be your side, mon ami."

"Tell me . . . of madame . . . your wife. She is well?"

"She is very well, Chambret."

"You have seen her recently?"

"Within ten days."

"You have . . . returned to her?"

"No—and yes. 'Twas not for lack of love for her that I gave her up—"

"Yes," said Chambret impatiently. "That I understand. . . I comprehend utterly your feeling. . . But you owe her happiness, though you sacrifice your own—everything—to give it her. She loves you . . . as she might have loved even me had you not come into her life."

"True."

"You are about to pocket your scruples that she may have her due portion of happiness?"

"I've promised, Chambret."

"I am glad. . . But you—what has brought you hither?"

"I—I wished to see ye."

But the dying are oftentimes and strangely endowed with curious insight into matters beyond their ken. Without perceptible hesitation Chambret made this apparent.

"You have come for the ruby," he said with conviction.

"How did ye know?"

Germes Spread in Skin

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery. Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. A 25c bottle will prove this to you.

Negro Housebreakers Jailed.

Noah Arnold and Will Burley, negro housebreakers arrested in Lexington Tuesday were brought to this city Wednesday morning and in Judge Denis Dudson's court were held to the grand jury in the sum of $300 each.

The negroes were charged with burglarizing the store of J. W. Mallory at Kenney Station, about four miles from Paris, several nights ago, and were arrested in Lexington Tuesday by Chief of Detectives Malcolm Brown, Detectives Donlan, Thompson and Stewart. Both men confessed their guilt.

Burley was picked up by the detectives first and after admitting having robbed the store implicated the other negro, who was later placed under arrest, and who also confessed. A large part of the stolen goods, which consisted of clothing, razors, knives, a rifle and tobacco, and returned to Mr. Mallory. Bloodhounds were sent to the scene the morning following the robbery, taking a trail which was followed to a house close by.

Their statement that they had stayed in a barn until twelve o'clock when they went to the store and forced an entrance was verified by the fact that a lantern left in the stable was found the next morning, where it had been overturned in a pile of straw, which was partly consumed.
